

Self-care plan:

Aged care team

Name:

Caring for others can be rewarding. However, staff working in aged care look after many people who die. You might find this loss hard to accept. You might find it hard to sleep, no longer enjoy your work, or feel tired. This can affect you and your family. Self-care is what we do to maintain balance in our life.

A self-care plan based on what you like to do can help. We have suggested a few things that you could try, but what you choose will depend on you.

Workplace self-care: Activities to help you at work

Some examples

Regular meetings with supervisors or a more experienced colleague

Join a support group with the people you work with

Attend training programs

My activities:

Physical self-care: Activities that help you to stay fit and healthy

Some examples

Develop a regular sleep routine

Aim for a healthy diet

Take lunch breaks and go for a walk

Self-care plan:

Family carer

Name:

Caring for someone at home at the end of life is complicated and you may find it challenging. The intensity of the caring situation can be hard to deal with. You might find it hard to sleep, feel anxious or worried. Your friends may not visit as often. This can affect you and your family. Self-care is what we do to maintain balance in our life.

A self-care plan based on what you like to do can help. Here we suggest a few things that you could try, but what you choose will depend on what suits you best.

Home self-care: Activities to help you at home

Some examples

Have someone to help with the care so that you can get time for yourself

Share an online calendar with family and friends so that they know when you might need help or company

Find out about respite services in your area that can be accessed for a few hours or a few days

Join a support or training group for carers

Attend training programs for carers
